

Linda Kleinbub

I love the New York that Linda Kleinbub brings to life in her poetry collection, COVER CHARGE.

Evocative in her imagery and compelling in her pacing, Kleinbub lays out a life in glimpse and shards, not like a tour guide with an urge to explain, but like a cool older sister who lets you tag along as she gets into all the coolest places. For a debut collection, COVER CHARGE is unusually grounded. This is a book to be savored. -Jason Schneiderman -author of Hold Me Tight

@Pink Trees Press 2022 Instagram @LindaKleinbub Cover Charge Origami Book Linda.Kleinbub@gmail.com

Here is a poet on the move, penning epiphanies as she spins from innocence to experience. Heartbreak jousts with joy. Lovers switch from villainous to valiant. Muse-driven tailspin jewels offer salvation. Lace-textured dialogues with the universe interact with deftly-rendered metaphorical reveries. Inventive and seductive—these poems are written in lighter fluid "... wild with guilt." They're ready for a match. Stand back. Pyromantic on the loose!

--Jeffrey Cyphers Wright, author of Party Everywhere

COVER CHARGE

LINDA KLEINBUB

POEMS

Suitcase
In the quiet time of evening when the katydid's song ends the moon still shines above.

She's packing her suitcase what will she carry home?

Under the silent stars investments made in time multiply or they can disintegrate by astronomical charts sent via email.

Everyone knows you need to look up to see the galaxy.

Published in LiveMag! #18

COVER CHARGE the debut poetry collection from LINDA KLEINBUB

Available SPRING 2022

An UNBEARABLES TITLE

from AUTONOMEDIA

Thank you, Ron Kolm,

Jim Feast & Jim Fleming

Back Road Driving
Back road driving in the evergreens can lead to quiet streams

keep holding telescopes star searching orange in the sunset still visible

lay beside me longer tangled limbs branches in the backyard

Published by The Rainbow Project

Spending the Day with Tinkerbell For Gabriel

Journey to Gotham pixies ride unicorns to knights in armor south of the border banquet we stroll down canyons under a silver sky witches brews and toy stores selfies with street art we scatter our dreams on the Lower East Side

published in Riverside Poets Anthology

Friend Request

Politics on Facebook filled with manipulation and lies I can't play that game. This public display- show what you please, fill your world with pretty pictures or try to cure a disease. Did somebody say "Birthday Fundraiser Please?" It's the Facebook parade.

Self-promotion free of charge. Who's in charge? You can show me your nightmare or put on a show, become a fantasy lover who's to know? Guaranteed personality upgrade. What? Now you want to unfriend me? What a tease!

Published in LiveMag! #18